

Kerry Inaugurates New Sustainable Production Facility in India

Kerry Group announces official opening of its new €20 million production facility in Tumkur, India.

The new site was officially opened by Irish Ambassador to India, Brian McElduff who reinforced Kerry's commitment to the South West Asia region. This is Kerry Group's fourth significant investment in India and supports 150 new jobs in factory management and production, with further expansion and an additional 150 jobs planned when running at full capacity in the future.

The Tumkur facility supports Kerry's ambition for sustainable production. The site is equipped with energy efficient LED technology and maximises natural light to reduce energy consumption. Utilities make use of solar power, and the site has been constructed with capacity to deliver more of its future energy needs from renewable sources.

Water harvesting measures reduce water intake and the facility will deliver significant water efficiencies, with waste water treated and re-used on site to achieve zero liquid discharge. The site also operates as zero waste to landfill, with waste volumes segregated and sent for recycling and recovery of resources.
